In this documentary, Hi-Ho Mistahey, Alanis Obomsawin tells the story of Shannen, who is from the Attawapiskat First Nation. Shannen's Dream is a national campaign to provide equitable access to education in safe and suitable schools for First Nations children. Strong participation in this initiative eventually brings Shannen's Dream all the way to the United Nations in Geneva. The film title Hi-Ho Mistahey has its roots in Shannen's family. Her parents would often say to their children, when they were toddlers, "I love you mistahey" (translates to "forever") but the kids couldn't pronounce "I love you" and instead, would respond, "Hi-ho mistahey!"
